Loyalty is the strongest growth asset in the dataset

Repeat behavior is already visible

3,116 customers are classified as Loyal; 701 are Returning; 83 are New.

Repeat buyers with more than 5 purchases: 3,476 total.

The strategic question is not whether customers come back, but how to give repeat behavior more value.

Discounts influence behavior, but they are not the whole value proposition

Use discounts to trigger trial

839 customers used discounts while spending above the average purchase amount.

Then shift the subscription story toward convenience, access, and rewards.

Target the moments where repeat behavior is already visible

Start where frequency already exists

Repeat buyers are counted as 2,518 non-subscribers and 958 subscribers.

Young Adults contribute the highest revenue among the reported age groups at $62,143.

Prioritize post-purchase conversion, high-frequency cohorts, and high-revenue age groups.

Three moves can turn loyalty into subscription growth

1 Build an exclusive subscriber bundle

Around top-rated products and express shipping.

2 Trigger offers after repeat purchases

Especially for discount-dependent products.

3 Measure the conversion economics

Conversion, repeat purchase rate, average spend, and margin by cohort.

Success means making membership feel like the natural next step in an already recurring relationship.
